INTERNATIONAL SOCIAL SCIENCE JOURNAL

Vol. XLIV, 1992
Nos. 131–134

SUBJECT AND AUTHOR INDEX

Subjects

America
'determinism' and 'possibilism', Human beings and the environment in 569–577
American colonies
The institutional inheritance of the 559–68
Americanity
as a concept, or the Americas in the modern world-system 549–557 Americas
in the modern world-system, Americanicity as a concept 549–557
Argentina
An historical perspective, Economic development in 463–472
Brazil
five hundred years of history 473–485 Canada
and the post-Columbian age 519–530
Chile frustration and change in the historical process, Economy and society in 487–501 China
in a period of social transformation 433–443
The role of natural sciences, technology and social sciences in policy-making in 291–297 Colonization
and the war of images in colonial and modern Mexico 503–518
Columbus
Development in question, Introduction: the end of the age of 457–462
Common European Home theory and practice, from East–West conflict to a 107–113 Comparative analysis and historical sociology 319–327
in a post-developmentalist context, Rethinking 351–365
Comparative poverty research
Some basic issues in 615–626
CSCE
and innovations in the practice of multilateral diplomatic negotiations, The 299–305
Culture
religions and development in North American and Latin American civilizations 593–606 Determinism and 'possibilism', Human beings and the environment in America: on 569–577 Development in Argentina: an historical perspective, Economic 463–472 in Latin America: science, technology and production five centuries after the encounter with Europe,

Knowledge and 579–591
in North American and Latin American civilizations, Culture, religions and 593–606 in question, Introduction: the end of the age of Columbus? 457–462 East European economies challenges and perspectives, Post-CMEA integration of Soviet and 91–106 East–West conflict to a common European home: theory and practice, From 107–113
East–West European politics
Economic ironies in Europe: a world economic interpretation of 41–56
Economic development in Argentina: an historical perspective 463–472 of the United States, The sources of the 531–548 Economic ironies in Europe: a world economic interpretation of East–Western European politics 41–56 Economy and society in Chile: frustration and change in the historical process 487-501 Environment
in America: on 'determinism' and 'possibilism', Human beings and the 569–577 Europe
a challenge to the social sciences 3–22 89–92 and the Third World 125–140 in global society to the twentieth century 23–39
The role of the social sciences in a changing 277–281 and the social sciences, The world, 141–146 a world economic interpretation of East–West European politics, Economic ironies in 41–56 European integration after the cold war – perspectives of a new order 79–90 as seen from the United States 115–124 in a world perspective 69–77
European social science
Towards an institutional infrastructure for 283–290
France
and Germany, Nationalism: a comparison between 375–384 Gender and social change, Violence 267–276
Germany
Nationalism: a comparison between France and 375–384
Global society
The holistic path to a 57–67 to the twentieth century, Europe in 23–39
Globality
The quest for 607–614
Historical obstinacy
On 343–350
Historical process
Economy and society in Chile: frustration and change in the 487–501 Historical sociology Comparative analysis and 319–327 gone back to its infancy? 403–415 Rational choice theory and 367–373
History of violence: homicide and suicide through the ages, 217–234 Holistic path to a global society, 57–67 Homicide and suicide through the ages 217–234 Hostage-taking
The paradoxical effects of 235–246
Hungary
Social sciences and the political transition in 147–151
Individualism
Violence, powerlessness and 193–207

Institutional inheritance of the American colonies 559–568 International non-governmental oganizations
International civil society: 417–431
Knowledge and development in Latin America: science, technology and production five centuries after the encounter with Europe 579–591
Latin America science, technology and production five centuries after the enounter with Europe, Knowledge and development in 579–591 Latin American civilizations, Culture, religions
and development in North American and 593–606
Mexico Colonization and the war of images in colonial and modern 503–518
Modern societies and innate violence 209–216
Multilateral diplomatic negotiations
The CSCE and innovations in the practice of 299–305 Nationalism
a comparison between France and Germany 375–384 Natural sciences technology and social sciences in policy-making in China,
The role of 291–297
Negotiations
The CSCE and innovations in the practice of multilateral diplomatic 299–305
New order European integration after the cold war – perspectives of a 79–90
North American and Latin American civilizations, Culture, religions and development in 593–606
Political transition in Hungary, Social sciences and the 147–151
Post-Columbian age
Canada in the 519–530
Post-developmentalist context Rethinking comparative analysis in a 351–365
Poverty research
Some basic issues in comparative 615–626
Power
Violence and 173–183
Powerlessness and individualism, Violence, 193–207 Prisoners of the state 329–342 Rational choice theory
and historical sociology 367–373
Religions
and development in North American and Latin American civilizations,
Culture 593–606
Revolutions culture, social structure, history and human agency,
Frameworks of the great 385–401
Romania
The social sciences in a changing 153–158
Science technology and production five centuries after the encounter with Europe,
Knowledge and development in Latin America: 579–591
Social change
Violence, gender and 267–276
Social science Towards an institutional infrastructure for European 283–290
Social sciences in a changing Europe, The role of the 277–281

in a changing Romania, The 153–158 Europe – a challenge to the 3–22 in policy-making in China, The role of natural sciences, technology and 291–297 and the political transition in Hungary 147–151
The world, Europe and the 141–146
Social transformation
China in a period of 433–443
Sociology
Comparative analysis and historical 319–327 gave up to history, has historical sociology gone back to its infancy? Or 'When 403–415 Rational choice theory and historical 367–373
Soviet and Eastern European economies challenges and perspectives, Post-CMEA integration of 91–106
State
Prisoners of the 329–342
Suicide
through the ages, The history of violence: homicide and 217–234 Technology and production five centuries after the encounter with Europe, Knowledge and development in Latin America: science, 579–591 and social sciences in policy-making in China, The role of natural sciences, 291–297
Third World
Europe 89–92 and the 125–140
Twentieth century
Europe in global society to the 23–39
United States
European integration as seen from the 115–124
The sources of the economic development of the 531–548 Violence
as descriptive and polemic, The concept of 185–191 gender and social change 267–276 homicide and suicide through the ages, The history of 217–234 Modern societies and innate 209–216 and power 173–183 powerlessness and individualism 193–207 of war: the 'theatre' of operations, Watching the 247–265 War of images in colonial and modern Mexico, colonization and the 503–518
the 'theatre' of operations, Watching the violence of 247–265
World perspective
European integration in a 69–77
World-system
Americanity as a concept, or the Americas in the modern 549–557

Authors

ALDER, Christine. Violence, gender and social change 267–276 BADIE, Bertrand. Comparative analysis and historical sociology 319–327
BERTRAND, Maurice. European integration in a world perspective 69–77
BIRNBAUM, Pierre. Nationalism: a comparison between France and Germany 375–384 BRUCHEY, Stuart. The sources of the economic development of the United States 531–548 CAUCHY, Venant. Modern societies and innate violence 209–216

CHESNAIS, Jean-Claude. The history of violence: homicide and suicide through the ages 217–234
CURY, Vania, VASCONCELOS, Luiz. Brazil: five hundred years of history 473–485
DUFOURS-GOMPERS, Roger Y. Watching the violence of war: the 'theatre' of operations 247–265 EISENSTADT, S. N. Frameworks of the great revolutions: culture, social structure, history and human agency 385–401
EISENSTADT, S. N. Culture, religions and development in North American and Latin American civilizations 593–606
ELSENHANS, Hartmut. Europe 89–92 and the Third World 125–140
ENYEDI, György. Social sciences and the political transition in Hungary 147–151
FERRER, Aldo. Economic development in Argentina: a historical perspective 463–472
GACHNOCHI, Georges, SKURNIK, Norbert. The paradoxical effects of hostage-taking 235–246 GARAVAGLIA, Juan C. Human beings and the environment in America: on 'determinism' and 'possibilism' 569–577 GHILS, Paul. International civil society: international non-governmental organizations in the international system 417–431
GRUZINSKI, Serge. Colonization and the war of images in colonial and modern Mexico 503–518
GUNDER FRANK, André. Economic ironies in Europe: a world economic interpretation of East–West European politics 41–56
HAMM, Bernd. Europe – a challenge to the social sciences 3–22
HAMM, Bernd. Towards an institutional infrastructure for European social science 283–290 HECHTER, Michael. Rational choice theory and historical sociology 367–373
HERMET, Guy. On historical obstinacy 343–350
JANNING, Josef, WEIDENFELD, Werner. European integration after the cold war – perspectives of a new order 79–90
KING, Alexander. The holistic path to a global society 57–67
LAWNICZAK, Ryszard. Post-CMEA integration of Soviet and East European economies – challenges and perspectives 91–106
LECA, Jean. Postface: has historical sociology gone back to its infancy? Or 'When sociology gave up history' 403–415
LI PEILIN. China in a period of social transformation 433–443
LIPATTI, Valentin. The CSCE and innovations in the practice of multilateral diplomatic negotiations 299–305
LITKE, Robert F. Violence and power 173–183
MCMICHAEL, Philip. Rethinking comparative analysis in a post-developmentalist context 351–365
MAYOR, Federico. The role of the social sciences in a changing Europe 277–281
MENDES, Candido. The quest for globality 607–614
MILHAILESCU, Ioan. The social sciences in a changing Romania 153–158
MUÑOZ, Oscar. Economy and society in Chile: frustration and change in the historical process 487–501

NAYLOR, R. T. Canada in the post-Columbian age 519–530
NOLTE, Hans-Heinrich. Europe in global society to the twentieth century 23–39
YEN, Else. Some basic issues in comparative poverty research 615–626 PESTIEAU, Joseph. Violence, powerlessness and individualism 193–207
PHILLIPS, Adedotun O. The world, Europe and the social sciences 141–146
PLATT, Thomas. The concept of violence as descriptive and polemic 185–191
QUIJANO, Anibal, WALLERSTEIN, Immanuel. Americanity as a concept, or the Americas in the modern world-system 549–557
ROMANO, Ruggiero. The institutional inheritance of the American colonies 559–568 SACHS, Ignacy. Introduction: the end of the age of Columbus? Development in question 457–462 SAGASTI, Francisco R. Knowledge and development in Latin America: science, technology and production five centuries after the encounter with Europe SKURNIK, Norbert, GACHNOCHI, Georges. The paradoxical effects of hostage-taking 235–246
TILLY, Charles. Prisoners of the state 329–342
VAN OUDENAREN, John. European integration as seen from the United States 115–124 VASCONCELOS, Luiz, CURY, Vania. Brazil: five hundred years of history 473–485 VORONSTOV, Guennadi. From East–West conflict to a common European home: theory and practice 107–113
WALLERSTEIN, Immanuel, QUIJANO, Anibal. Americanity as a concept, or the Americas in the modern world-system 549–557
WEIDENFELD, Werner, JANNING, Josef. European integration after the cold war – perspectives of a new order 79–90
WU JISONG. The role of natural sciences, technology and social sciences in policy-making in China 291–297